

Shannon Rizzo

Shannon Rizzo, aka “Global Girl,” has been an entrepreneurial enthusiast since she was 19 years old when she quit college to start her first business. She has always had a mile-long list of goals that were seemingly out of reach...until she set her vision and went after them!

That determination led Shannon to become the first to accomplish many remarkable things. She was the first to start a bicycle courier service in Nashville, Tennessee, which later became the catalyst for starting her first global company at age 25. She was in the first cohort of graduates in Asian Studies and International Trade program from the University of Memphis. She is the first person in her family to study Mandarin Chinese and a first-generation college graduate in her family.

Speaking Topics

How to gain the confidence to change your life to live the life you always dreamed of.

How to give 100 percent of yourself and still have fun every damn day!

You must tell your brain what to think to be a successful, driven, self-motivated solo-preneur.

So much in life, whether it is business, career, family, or personal development is really about perspective. When it all seems too much, we lose our perspective and we quickly lose our ability to see the opportunities that are right before us. I have helped so many people just like you carve out their own path and begin to see the options that are open to them. It's time for you to take control of your life and happiness.

I can help you clear away the cobwebs, rediscover what's important to you, help you reawaken your imagination, creativity, and lust for life.
